My serious scholarly interest in Job began in 1967

- . See also \bib\7nwsjrn
- . In this bib many articles are also included which do not have "Job" in the title or deal with Job. These articles should be transferred to \bib\7nwsjrn ... well, it's all a matter of time, energy, motivation, labor ... relevant articles are easily found by switching back and forth between the two files.

NEEDED

- . correct abbreviation(s) of the journals - see, e.g., OTA
 - . correct titles, date of first issue and last issue, place of publication, editor, etc., if series or journal, yearbook, etc.
 - . call numbers, at least, in JKM-LSTC or also in Regenstein-UoC, Oriental Institute, etc.
 - . repair of transliteration and Hebrew text - (disaster! for some reason NB1, NB2, NB3 files did not transfer properly into NB4)

NOTES

Emphasis is on articles in English and German, therefore, seriously limiting the scope of research. Articles in French, Hebrew, Italian, Dutch, Spanish, etc., should also be consulted to make studies somewhat more comprehensive, but I leave this to speakers of these languages.

Dahood articles are listed in a separate bibliography - available from me.
I have a complete set of clean copies of all of the articles by Dahood (copied by L. Hayes in 1995). Since 1966 I have read and studied most of Dahood's publications (in detail) as soon as they were published. Only a few articles are missing from my set of copies. These articles may have never been published.

Reference to my paper p. 315, n. 77: “Gedankt sei an dieser Stelle Herrn Prof. W.L. Michel (Chicago), der mir nach meinem Vortrag in Leuven wichtige Hinweise zum Verständnis der Hiobantwort gab. Auf seinen Artikel im vorliegenden Sammelband sei deshalb ausdrücklich hingewiesen.”

OFFERED PAPERS

Of the above fourteen invited main papers only the one by me is of a philological nature and uses the insights of Northwest Semitic Studies. It’s a deep puzzlement that colleagues are not turning to the hundreds of insights into the consonantal Masoretic text which are gained through Northwest Semitic studies. Very strange!

In spite of the fact that B. Zuckerman worked with me and Prof. M. Pope on Pope's revision of his manuscript for his Job in the Anchor Bible series (third edition, 1973), based on my dissertation, B. Zuckerman does not inform readers about the revolutionary possibilities based on Northwest Semitic studies.

David Wolfers approached me during the World Conference on Job in Leuven in 1993 where I gave an invited lecture. He also gave a presentation. We talked. He invited me to his room. We conversed through the night. It was incredible: two souls meeting. A highpoint in my life. A year later he was dead. Another death which shook me to the root of my existence.

David's book on Job is a masterpiece--in spite of the fact that he did not use the insights from Northwest Semitic Studies.

Most articles in Hebrew, but there are English summaries. I need the English summaries. Check, need overview of whole journal - English summaries. My modern Hebrew is not that good. I advanced to an intermediate level in 1966(!) and since then have not kept up ... very bad. I am convinced that Biblical Hebrew scholars must know modern Hebrew.

- Loader, J. A.,
 x "Job's sister: Undermining an unnatural religiosity," 312-329
- Naomi is Job's "sister."
- FROM THE ABSTRACT: "It is concluded that the satisfactory ending of the story is possible not in spite of, but because of Naomi's resentment, and that a religiosity which scorns bitterness toward God is undermined as being unnatural."
- The arguing with God tradition, esp. about innocent suffering, is everywhere once one accepts it as legitimate in Biblical thought. I see it more clearly only since my understanding and translation of Job 42-5-6.
- How trite, corny and true: One can only see when one can see. One is blind as long as one is blind or wants to be blind. The eyes of the blind will be opened. The lame will dance.
